The President laid before the Senate the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The Texas Tech University women's basketball team brought great honor and prestige to the university, to the Southwest Conference, and to Texans everywhere by its outstanding achievement in winning the 1993 national title with a hard-fought 84-82 victory over Ohio State University in the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship tournament; and

WHEREAS, Led by national Player of the Year Sheryl Swoopes, who shattered the NCAA record for most points scored in a championship game with a phenomenal 47 points against a tough Buckeye squad and averaged more than 35 points per game throughout the tournament with 177 points in the team's five tournament games, the Lady Raiders emerged as the most dominant team in women's college basketball in 1993; and

WHEREAS, The Lady Raiders' performance in the tournament capped a superb 31-3 season in which they also won the Southwest Conference co-championship; the team then continued its season-long dominance of the conference by winning the SWC postseason tournament, which gave the team an automatic berth in the NCAA playoffs; and

WHEREAS, Playing in the West Region against formidable opposition, the Lady Raiders handily disposed of Washington University 70-64, Southern California 87-67, and Colorado 79-54 to gain a share of the national spotlight as one of the Final Four teams vying for the NCAA crown; making the most of their first appearance among the Final Four, the Lady Raiders made their debut a memorable one, beating top-ranked Vanderbilt University 60-46 to set up the climactic showdown for the national title; and

WHEREAS, Their 84-82 triumph in the tournament final, the team's 19th consecutive win, proved to be the fitting culmination to a superb year of competition for the Texas Tech team, which benefited not only from the superior talent on its roster but also from the capable leadership of Head Coach Marsha Sharp, who molded a group of outstanding young athletes into a cohesive, selfless championship-caliber unit; and

WHEREAS, The students and faculty at Texas Tech University, the university's loyal alumni, Southwest Conference sports fans, and Texans everywhere are extremely proud of these fine young women and their exceptional coach, and the great honor they have brought to Texas with their national championship is indeed worthy of the highest praise and recognition; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the 73rd Legislature of the State of Texas hereby congratulate Head Coach Marsha Sharp and the Texas Tech University Lady Raiders on their truly superb achievement in winning the 1993 NCAA women's basketball championship and extend best wishes for continued success in the future; and, be it further
